DOUBT AND HESITATION RULE IN WALL STREET. REACTION FOLLOWS WEEK

OF UPWARD MOVEMENTS. Close Is Steady, However, and Speculative Sentiment Generally Much More Hopeful.

New York, Dec. 5.—There was a tone of doubt and hesitation in to-day's stock market, which quite naturally followed the appearance in yesterday's market of signs of a culmination of a rise. Yesterday's large volume of dealings and the small net changes in price pointed both to ing. While the realizing is a strengthening factor of the market, the reduction of the short interest deprives it of a technical factor of strength. A renewed advance in Brooklyn Transit, followed by the local tractions this morning, obtained little following in the general list. A selling movement followed, which carried a number of the leaders, such as Pennsylvania, United States Steel preferred and Amalgamated, a point under last night. A feverish and irregular recovery succeeded upon the publication of the bank statement. The gain of $50,000 in cash reserves was an agreeable surprise compared with the expectation of a decrease of several hundred thousand doilars, and it is supposed to be due to the making up of former discrepancies the other way.

The increase in the loan item of a little over $1,000,000 was not disturbing. The market closed steady and not far from last night's level. The closing sterling exchange market was weak and declined further to a level, which will assure the movement toward New York of available supply in foreign money markets. The Financial Chronicle points out that municipal bond sales for November were larger than for any previous November except in 1896. The large issues of new raflroad-bonds, which have been successfully placed in the recent past, is also the occasion of comment favorable to the financial prospect. A contrast is afforded by the figures of new incorporations with a capital of $1,200,000 or over during November, which fell to the lowest aggregate of any month since the early part of 1899.

MARKET BROADENS. ing. While the realizing is a strengthen-

The temper of speculation in stocks has undergone a change this week and prices have advanced in a broadening market. Commission-houses report that there has been little growth in outside order business, and the movement is supposed to be ness, and the movement is supposed to be principally due to operations by professional traders and habitual operators of the wealthy class. But the technical significance of the movement is probably not less on that account. The operators in stocks for a long time have found their only success on the side of the receding prices. This week the market gave evidence of being oversoid, and the bears falled of their recent successes in forcing out sales of stocks when they offered prices down. Among the industrials especially, which have suffered such drastic scaling down of prices, the urgent demand to borrow stocks for delivery, which commanded a premium in some cases, gave warning of danger to shorts, and prompted buyers to cover. The early covering movement among short speculators of the smaller class did not at first disturb the more powerful operators on that side of the market, and they were inclined to avail themselves of railies in prices to put out fresh lines at the higher level. Some of the selling that was attributed to realizing by the longs was undoubtedly this renewed short selling.

With the persistence of the upward movement through the week an extended sport interest was thus left uncovered until past the middle of the week, when it became clear that a bear element of a stronger and more persistent character than any herelofore reached was being driven to cover, with an important effect on prices and an awakening of decided animation in the market.

FEARS AGGRAVATED.

by their suspicion that an absorption of stocks had been going on by the great capital and banking combinations, whose operations contempiated wide policies and are based upon convictions as to general conditions and their ultimate working out. The recovery in prices gained force and proceeded in the face of various news factors that were unfavorable, but which had to do with conditions that have been more or less foreseen and have been an element in the speculation for a decline for some time past. For instance, the cotton crop indicated by the Government's estimate at below 10,00,000 bales would be regarded as amounting to a national calamity were it not that the heavy marketing of cotton in November awakens some skepticism toward the estimate.

Reports continue to be received of the tional calamity were it not that the heavy marketing of cotton in November awakces some skepticism toward the estimate. Reports continue to be received of the closing down of iron and steel mills and of new measures of retrenchment and economy in that trade. Relifered carnings, while still holding above last year's level both for gross and net earnings, show a progressive decline in the ratio of increase for both. But these developments are met by the growth of the opinion that the enormous shrinkage which has occurred in the prices of securities has already been sufficient to discount the worst that could happen in trade reaction and contraction. The sentiment over the industrial future also has grown distinctly more hopeful. This is especially marked in regard to the fron and steel trade, from which come reports indicating that the decline in prices of product has met a revived demand, which promises some consumptive absorption of the lessened volume of output. The measures of economy already adopted and those in contemplation, and the reduced freight rates on steel products for export, arouse hopes of an available outlet in the foreign trade statement for October, offer gratifying evidences of the revival of the foreign trade statement for October, offer gratifying evidences of the revival of the export trade in all lines of manufactures. MONEY STILL HIGH. The money market has scarcely shown the expected relaxation following the com-

The money market has scarcely shown the expected relaxation following the completion of the December settlements. Conditions abroad, as well as here, promise a continuance of firm money market for the rest of the year. But it is made clear from the movement of the international exchanges and the statistics of international trade that New York commands the exchange situation. New Orleans and San Francisco have made further requisitions upon New York for currency during the week and additional shipments to those points are expected, but the Western demand for crop-moving purposes had come to an end.

Gold for import has been secured in the London market, whenever the movement of money rates did not make it more profitable for holders of exchange on London to hold up their collection and leave the proceeds on loan in London. A new development has been the shipment of gold from Japan to San Francisco. San Francisco indis it of greater advantage to dispose of its sterling exchange claims to Japan and to take gold from there in compensation. The movement serves as a reiter from the San Francisco demands upon New York for currency. Confidence is undiminished that money will become easier with the turn of the year, and it is believed that the movement of stock is, in part, a discounting of this expectation. The bond market has been somewhat Irregular, but has grown stronger in sympathy with stocks. United States 2s and the approach of the process of the comment of the year, and the hands appear of the power of the year, and it is believed that the movement of stock is, in part, a discounting of this expectation. Irregular, but has grown stronger in sympathy with stocks. United States 2s and the new 4s declined 4 per cent below the closing call of last week.
